These townhome plans were built in two master-planned communities, Urban Trails and Viridian – Bird’s Fort. Separating the entries for each home to different sides provides the look of a single family elevation as well as offering additional privacy. The modest footprint provided an opportunity to maximize square footage while elevating the interiors. Features include oversized pantries, pocket offices, flex space and open-concept living. The strong contrast of painted white brick and black windows brings interest to the streetscape.
