These three-story homes are the only single family residences at the heart of CityLine, an urban neighborhood within walking distance with many restaurants, entertainment venues and transit. Floor plans offer large, open areas that allow for spacious living even on narrow lots in this urban context. To further capitalize on the limited space, the design incorporates an oversized outdoor patio on the third floor where buyers can entertain family and friends or relax alone. The modern elevations appeal to a wide variety of buyers, from empty nesters to young professionals.
