The retail store's materials and detailing reinforce techniques and highlight products while honoring the area's architectural heritage. Our interior design team assisted with the palette and detailing, using weathered cedar siding and angled columns with exposed joinery on the exterior. Similar approaches continue on the interior with oversized wood trusses and exposed nail laminated timber (NLT) roofing panels fabricated directly by Ganahl. Together with oversized lightwells and innovative modular wood details, the space offers a bright, sustainable environment for customers and employees.

An environmental graphics program curated from historic records developed for previous Ganahl projects was carried over to the new retail store.
